Step into a story more than three centuries in the making. Built in 1695, 547 Concord Road is one of Pennsylvania's earliest homes, proudly standing through the Revolutionary War and beyond as a cornerstone of the community. Once owned by Col. John Hannum—a colonial leader, businessman, and militiaman—this residence even operated as one of the first licensed taverns in Pennsylvania (1720). Today, it offers the rare opportunity to own an authentic piece of American history while enjoying the comforts of modern living.

Set on almost two level acres within the acclaimed Garnet Valley School District, the property blends historic character with flexible spaces to suit today's lifestyles. Original details such as wide-plank hardwood floors, nine fireplaces, hand-crafted mantels, and period doors remain beautifully intact, while thoughtful updates provide comfort and convenience which are ready for you to take to the next level. The kitchen and bathrooms have been refreshed, and the primary suite now includes a spacious modern closet.

With five bedrooms—including a private guest or in-law suite with its own kitchen—this home adapts to multigenerational living, work-from-home setups, or even income-producing opportunities. The full-length covered front porch, expansive walk-up attic, and oversized basement with outside access create endless possibilities for storage, hobbies, or future design visions.

Outdoors, the property shines with lush surroundings, a 3-car carport, a generous patio, and a vast, private backyard ideal for entertaining, gardening, or play.

Located just minutes from Glen Mills, Media, and tax-free shopping in Delaware, with quick access to major routes, this home delivers a lifestyle that is as practical as it is inspiring.

Don't miss your chance to own a landmark residence where history meets opportunity. Bring your vision and love of historic homes to 547 Concord Road.
