FLINT HILL, FLINT HILL, VA

Liberty Hall is a commanding presence at the summit of Fogg Mountain, yet tucked away from the outside world. This peaceful retreat has views in all directions, but is all but hidden from its neighbors. The large reception rooms and comfortable private quarters mirror the dual nature of the property – both imposing and very private. Suitable for a weekend escape, a full-time residence, or a luxury hunt box, this stately home epitomizes elegant country living.

The Main House was built as a true “œhall” with large public rooms and private spaces along a long, mostly single story, framework. The basement and upper story are not visually apparent upon first view.

Built in 1993, Liberty Hall was expanded approximately 10 years later to its current configuration with large dining room and pool terrace additions. While the large rooms have an imposing grandeur, they are extremely comfortable gathering spaces for smaller intimate groups as well. The exterior is weathered cedar shingles with a rubberized slate roofing shingles and bluestone coping and terraces off the kitchen and around the pool.

There is a one bedroom shingle cottage is located some distance away from the main house and is very private. The cottage features a large stone fireplace and pine floors and small bath with shower.

The seventy-five acres at the top of Fogg Mountain are mostly wooded with a network of riding and walking trails leading down to a small pond at the bottom of the property. Around the house is a gently sloping lawn that has been fenced for dogs. Rock outcroppings add interest to the landscaping around the house.

Pool – the heated pool is surrounded by a bluestone terrace and features a large pergola connecting the pool area to the house.

Barn – The barn is designed for two stalls with a small storage/tack room. There is electricity and water. A large overhang provides additional shelter for horses.

Paddocks – There are two paddocks around the barn enclosed in three board fencing. There is additional space below the house to expand paddock space if desired.

Built in 1993
